Core Item Update: Women's suits and kurtas 2026–28

Kurta sets are the backbone of Indian womenswear.

Forecut Editorial · 11 October 2026

Overview

Kurta sets are the backbone of Indian womenswear. Fit-and-flare Anarkalis hold steady at their peak, embroidered co-ord sets are rising fast, and festive kaftan kurtas grow through 2027. Angrakha wrap kurtas are the emerging shape to watch.

How to update your women's suits and kurtas range

- Keep Anarkalis in core ranges in jewel tones.
- Invest in embroidered kurta co-ords with placement work at the neckline.
- Test angrakha wraps with ties instead of buttons.
- Reduce straight kurtas with palazzos after Summer 27.

What to check in women's suits and kurtas development

- Length: short, hip, knee and ankle lengths serve different customers.
- Neck and sleeve: keep a few signature necklines and update with details such as yokes and placket trims.
- Sets: define what is included: kurta, bottom and dupatta.
- Sizing: include bust, waist and hip measurements and the length for each size.

Fabric guide

Choose fabric by occasion, climate and price point. The same design often needs two fabric options: a premium version and a value or summer version.

- Cotton, mulmul and cambric for summer
- Chanderi and cotton-silk for festive
- Rayon and viscose for value ranges
- Linen blends for premium casual

The global view

Indian women's suits and kurtas sell well beyond India, to South Asian communities in the UK, North America, the Gulf, Southeast Asia and Australia, and increasingly to customers discovering Indian craft. For international customers, provide clear size conversions, care guidance and styling ideas for local events.

Common questions

Which kurta lengths sell best? It varies by region and age; many brands carry knee to calf lengths as core and test short kurtas for younger customers.

Are co-ord sets replacing suits? They sit alongside suits, especially for daily and work wear.
